What is the Federal Indian Trust Responsibility?

- "The Federal Indian Trust Responsibility is a legal obligation under which the United States Congress has charged itself with moral obligations of the highest responsibility and trust toward American Indian tribes (Seminole Nation v. United States, 1942; Cherokee Nation v. Georgia, 1831).
- Wards of the government
- "The federal Indian trust responsibility holds the United States legally responsible for the protection of tribal lands, assets, resources, and treaty rights. The Supreme Court suggests that the Federal Indian Trust Responsibility entails legal duties, moral obligations, and the fulfillment of understandings and expectations that have arisen over the entire course of dealings between the U.S. and the tribes."

Pablo Abeita (1871-1940)

Pablo Abeita was a Governor of Isleta and a well recognized leader of Isleta Pueblo. He was educated in a Jesuit School at Old Albuquerque and then St. Michaels College in Santa Fe. In 1889, he was appointed to the All Indian Pueblo Council at the age of nineteen. In 1913, he was appointed as a judge and elected Secretary of the AIPC.

Quote from Elsie Clews Parson, written in a footnote:

Lucinda observed in this connection that Pablo Abeita (the chief of the White Corn group and the most influential personality of Isleta) "hates the Laguna people and wants to cut their ways."
